

Note: There is a marked increase in the contribution of non-communicable diseases to overall mortality, with cancers, diabetes and injuries being the major contributors to this increase.